SUMMARY REPORT OF THE
NINTH ANNUAL PINAL COUNTY TOWN HALL
MAY 8-10, 1996

INTRODUCTION

One hundred forty-nine delegates took part in the Ninth Annual Pinal County Town Hall held May 8-10, 1996 at the Gold Canyon Ranch Resort. This year's theme was "Volunteers in Service to Communities: People Making a Difference." Delegates heard from a variety of speakers and panelists, including Mr. John Dutton, Senior Vice President of the Points of Light Foundation, who provided the keynote address on the subject "How to Change the World."

The Town Hall format was altered significantly to provide the delegates with an opportunity to take part in an actual volunteer work project as a part of the regular schedule. Thursday afternoon approximately fifty delegates participated in a house fix-up clean-up- paint-up project for a lady in the city of Apache Junction. This modification in the town hall format also affected the consensus process, as less time was allocated for individual discussion groups. The consensus group process was also eliminated due to time constrictions.. Each discussion group therefore, addressed four basic questions relating to the subject and arrived at independent suggestions and ideas for consideration and future action. The six group facilitators, acting as a panel reported to the delegates with brief overviews of the findings of their respective groups. The edited report that follows represents a combined summary of the efforts of the six discussion groups. Specific items related to action already initiated or to be taken are indicated at the end of the report.

SUGGESTIONS AND ACTION STEPS

A. What do we most need in Pinal County to strengthen the impact of service and volunteerism and to most effectively mobilize our volunteer efforts to meet human needs?

1. Development of a county-wide comprehensive volunteer system/network.

This system/network would:

- promote networking between "givers and receivers" of volunteer services
- develop volunteer listings (local and county) of "givers and receivers" of volunteer services
- identify local sites (each community to serve as clearing houses of volunteer information)
- establish a 1-800 telephone number for Volunteer Center Service ("givers and receivers")

- utilize the County Library Internet System for information, distribution and develop a web site for volunteer information exchange
  - explore funding (inter and intra-agency) for the county wide enhancement of the current volunteer center
  - develop a training team and topic list for assisting agencies and individuals with the 3-R's of volunteer utilization issues ("recruitment, readiness, and recognition")
  - access current county-wide newsletters for inclusion of volunteer-relevant information (i.e. PGBHA, Pinal Network News, etc)
  - explore the possibility of a regular volunteer program being offered on K-BEAN Television
  - develop a Resource Document for the "ins and outs" of volunteer utilization in Pinal County
2. Development of a county-wide internet program with a data bank of information, including human resources, financial resources, and volunteer program experiences.
- The program would:
- connect with the Pinal County Library Network and the Volunteer Center of Pinal County/Points of Light Network
  - establish a partnership with Central Arizona College, local schools government entities, and volunteer agencies to establish training on how to utilize the network
  - provide and distribute hard copies of a data base directory
3. Broaden the base and membership of the Board of Directors of the Volunteer Center of Pinal County, thereby expanding representation and services throughout Pinal County.
4. Encourage Pinal County Town Hall delegates to conduct "mini- town halls" in their local areas in an effort to connect and share information on volunteerism acquired at Town Hall "96". Available resources for facilitation include Arizona Public Service and other groups and organizations.
5. Communicate volunteer needs and service opportunities to county schools and their students through:
- public affairs announcements
  - bulletin boards
  - newsletters
  - dissemination of information at the monthly meetings of the county school superintendents
  - reading materials and mentoring at all levels, including lower grades
  - involvement of students in projects
  - units on volunteerism within the curriculum
6. Raise the visibility of volunteer needs and efforts through:
- expanding media coverage that highlights recognition and awards
  - establishment of special events that profile volunteers and volunteerism.

- presentations to service clubs and civic organizations by volunteer speakers
  - increased outreach efforts to overlooked groups such as churches, clubs etc
  - building on high profile projects
  - demonstration of the organization
  - making volunteerism a lifestyle
  - increased marketing of the Volunteer Center of Pinal County
7. Define and determine the needs in individual communities and mobilize human and financial resources to accomplish the identified task. Special attention should be given to the identification of funding sources for volunteer centers and coordinators.
  8. Revitalize the spirit of volunteerism throughout the county and invite successful volunteer organizations to help mentor areas with little or no existing volunteer organizations.
  9. Take the Volunteer Training Workshop into the various communities of Pinal County("show on the road").
  10. Explore ways that citizens can donate and volunteer to directly adopt families - thereby forming a direct connection.
  11. Utilize the Pinal County School Superintendents office to expand school-community programs and enhance the spirit of volunteerism. Consideration should be given to a student leadership program as a part of this effort.
  12. Focus attention on the elderly by determining their needs, i.e., home repairs, transportation, companionship, etc. and then organize volunteer efforts to meet the needs.

B. What can we do in each community to promote volunteerism and the development of a county-wide comprehensive volunteer system/network?

- Identify centralized information sites, such as Family Resource Centers, libraries, Chambers of Commerce, etc.
- Identify a centralized contact for volunteer information.
- Identify local funding for volunteer information and services.
- Publish telephone numbers of Town Hall participants as a part of the Town Hall Report to enhance networking among communities.
- Forward local resource information (volunteer service "givers and receivers") to the Volunteer Center of Pinal County.
Address: % P.O. Box 11378, Casa Grande, Arizona 85230-1378
- Formulate local volunteer committees to enhance utilization of energies.
- Identify local skills and develop a needs bank of information.

- Establish a volunteer center and/or clearing house in each local community. Consider the use of United Way funds to help support these efforts.
- Organize a mini-town hall to determine local needs, resources, and how to become a partner in the county wide system or network.
- Individually promote volunteerism and take a neighbor and/or friend to a volunteer project or center.
- Individually get more involved in community functions and share your personal talent and energy
- Local businesses and organizations totally "adopt" a project (school, etc.) and follow to completion.
- Organize and provide training of a proactive nature to church groups and others in the area of dealing with potential disaster situations.
- Organize a nucleus of volunteers including a "teen group".
- Organize a local talent bank
- Individually identify a volunteer effort you wish to support and become seriously involved with it. Consider both short and long term projects including such things as serving on boards.

C. How can the "three R's of Volunteerism," i.e., recruitment, retention, and recognition be utilized in an effective manner to strengthen volunteer programs and services?

1. Recruitment

- Keeping in mind that many people are busy, identify important short term projects that require short blocks of time.
- Volunteer organizations should conceptualize and share their vision, mission, and purpose with volunteers and the public.
- In securing volunteers and partners, target groups should be identified i.e., schools, churches, businesses, homeowners associations, juveniles, teen moms, gang members, etc. Remember to ask for help.
- Develop a strategy and/or plan for recruitment of volunteers.
- Design a public relations and/or marketing message, strategy, and plan.
- Encourage cross generation efforts and involve youth and seniors in working together on individual projects.
- Develop incentives and sources of motivation for volunteers that include a variety of rewards and opportunities for recognition.
- Every effort should be made to obtain a job/volunteer match.
- Use volunteers to recruit other volunteers. Training to recruit should be provided the volunteers along with aids such as bumper stickers, etc.
- In recruitment of student volunteers communicate with the parents as well as the students. Consider sending notes home from the school or project sponsor.
- In scheduling volunteers make certain to provide them with periodic breaks.
- Remember - seize the moment!
- Potential volunteers should be made aware that they will be provided training and an orientation when they begin their volunteer tasks.

2. Readiness/Retention

- Maintain, update, and review job descriptions with each volunteer.
- Plan volunteer program with special attention to vision, mission statement, goals, and strategies of the organization.
- Establish regular meetings with the volunteers.
- Consider utilization of a newsletter for volunteers. This can be monthly and highlight individual volunteers as well as other information.
- Provide periodic training and/or orientation sessions for volunteers. Experienced volunteers can be used as mentors and trainers. Training should be extensive, cover interpersonal relations and be unique to the job site.
- Leave the volunteer with the impression that every job is important.
- Supervisory support should be provided the volunteers so that on going nurturing, recognition, coaching and evaluation is assured.
- Identify and build on those tasks that bring about self satisfaction to each respective volunteer.
- Provide volunteers with updated resumes for their job after completion of their tasks.

3. Recognition

- Provide positive reinforcement in a variety of ways, but don't forget to use "praise" and show appreciation when opportunities arise.
- Utilize letters to the editor in local newspapers to complement and show appreciation to volunteers and work site coordinators.
- Form and utilize volunteer focus groups (work teams) to provide input on projects and/or tasks.
- Plan inter-agency events to celebrate accomplishments and recognize volunteer efforts.
- Prepare and distribute professional looking press releases that utilize photographs when possible.
- Recognize generation sensitivity and individual differences when considering recognition approaches.
- Recognize that hosted refreshments (food and drink) are often motivating and very much appreciated by all volunteers - especially youth.
- Schedule annual recognition events for volunteers that can provide awards, appreciation and sense of celebration.
- Investigate the possibility of rewarding student volunteers with trips, coupons at the school bookstore, t-shirts, caps and other school/youth oriented recognition approaches.
- Corporate and business organizations can often provide recognition for volunteers through regular newsletters and/or annual reports.
- Encourage volunteers to take part in national or state events as a form of recognition and continued motivation.
- Create a balance of awards and recognition efforts so as to maintain enthusiasm and interest and meet a variety of individuals needs.
- Utilize the strongest motivator of all - Listen to your volunteers.

Partners in Economic Progress

What volunteers bring is the human touch, the individual, caring approach that no government program, however well-meaning and well executed, can deliver. They bring a sense of entrepreneurship that encourages and allows for individual approaches to diverse problems. They demonstrate that together, in partnership, we can solve the problems that are facing each of our communities.

Actor Edward James Olmos
